This work is registered with the James Rosenquist Studio under registration number 73.28.

Provenance
A gift from the artist to the present owner in 1973

One of the main exponents of American Pop Art, alongside Andy Warhol and Roy Lichtenstein, James Rosenquist independently brought his experience as a commercial artist painting billboards, into the fine art sphere. Rosenquist’s representation of consumerist imagery brought him tremendous acclaim in the 1960s. His work in the 1970s continued in the same vein, though with additional focus on graphic works due to his injury in a car accident.

Untitled (Study for Nails) dating from 1973, relates to a series of paintings including Snow Fence I (1973), and Snow Fence II (1973). Both were shown at the Leo Castelli gallery in the same year alongside some of Rosenquist’s most celebrated paintings, including Paper Clip (1974), now in the collection of the Dallas Art Museum. The present work shows the artist in a period of experimentation, mixing painting and printmaking to produce a meditative monochromatic work. The end result is an exaltation of the common nail, generic imagery the viewer is familiar with, but not nostalgic for. As an artist who captured mid-century American consumer culture, Rosenquist’s canvases can be found in major museum collections around the world including the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the National Gallery of Art in Washington D.C., and the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

Washington D.C., The American University Museum at the Katzen Arts Center, Thomas Downing and the Sublime Decorative, 2018, illustrated in color on the front cover

An exemplary painting by Thomas Downing, Ring Eight (1969) hails from the artist’s most desirable and captivating series of dot compositions. Striking in scale and spectacular in color, the present work is instantly recognisable as a masterwork from the Color Field artist, who’s canon is typified by geometric patterns rendered in vibrant jewel-like colors that explore the possibilities of color and space.

Based in the nation’s capital from 1953, Downing was a key member of the Washington Color School alongside his friends and peers Kenneth Noland, Morris Louis and Howard Mehring. After gaining recognition from solo shows in the Washington D.C. area, examples from Downing’s dot paintings were featured in Clement Greenberg’s seminal travelling exhibition Post-Painterly Abstraction in 1964, and later the highly influential show The Responsive Eye at the Museum of Modern Art, New York, in 1965. After becoming a teacher at the Corcoran School of Art and Design in 1965, Downing played a pivotal role in the development of the next generation of Washington area artists, most notably Sam Gilliam who has referenced Downing as both a close friend and a major influence on his practise.

Today Downing’s work is included in a number of important museum collections, including Washington D.C.’s National Gallery of Art, the Phillips Collection and the Smithsonian American Art Museum, together with the Norton Simon Museum in Pasadena. The American University Museum at the Katzen Arts Center, Washington D.C., recently held a major retrospective on the artist in 2018. Entitled Thomas Downing and the Sublime Decorative, the present work was featured in the ground-breaking show and was chosen as the front cover of the exhibition catalogue.

Completely fresh to market, the present work has never come to auction before and has been in the same family collection for over forty years. The work was acquired from D.C. arts institution Pyramid Gallery in 1978 by prominent collectors Dr Narciso and Hortensia Anillo. Having moved to Washington D.C. from Cuba via Madrid in 1962, Dr Anillo was a medical doctor while Hortensia worked for the Organization of American States. The cultural couple were key figures in the city’s international social scene as well as patrons of the artistic community, championing local artists, many of whom became friends. Downing was close to the couple and the present work held a prominent place in the collectors’ home for decades, after it was originally acquired to replace a damaged painting by Gene Davis. Davis also knew the couple, and the important documentary on the artist by Carl Colby was filmed at the Anillo’s property.

Literature
Exquisitely arranged in a continuous and ever-changing dance, Alexander Calder’s breath-taking Little Red and Blue (1976), is a seminal work by the pioneering artist in his most desirable and iconic form: the mobile. Coming to auction for the very first time having been in an important private collection for almost half a century, the present work is a monumental example of Calder’s singular sense of elegance combined with his lively spontaneity, creating a mesmerizing and harmonious mobile.

A supremely elegant combination of sleek design and technical craftsmanship, the present work is an excellent example of a master creating at the height of his artistic practice. A marvelous example of an important mature work by the artist, Little Red and Blue was created in 1976, a seminal year marking the pinnacle of Calder’s illustrious career. Created just a few months prior to the artist's unexpected passing, the year saw the opening of the artist's major retrospective show at the Whitney Museum in New York entitled Calder's Universe. The show traveled to fifteen cities throughout the United States and Japan, and numerous artists and important figures honored him at the show’s opening dinner including Georgia O’Keeffe, Arthur Miller, Louise Nevelson, Marcel Breuer, John Cage and Merce Cunningham. Already recognized as one of the Twentieth Century’s most important sculptors, the exhibition cemented his influence and importance within the canon of American Art, an honor overshadowed only by President Gerald Ford's offer of the Medal of Freedom. Recognizing the artist’s meteoric contribution to the American arts, Calder declined the award in protest of the Vietnam War.

Calder came from a family of well-established sculptors. At the age of eight he was given his first studio amidst the burgeoning Californian Arts and Crafts movement. These embryonic experiences no doubt played a role when, in 1926, Calder moved to Paris and began to develop his wire sculpture and his Cirque Calder (1926–1931), a unique body of performance art made from wire and a spectrum of found materials. This break from the tradition of static sculpture anticipated Calder's invention of the mobile, which he first realized in 1931 by adding motors to his abstract objects. It was Marcel Duchamp who coined the term “mobile” during a studio visit in the fall of that year. By 1932, Calder had created his first suspended mobile that was free from all mechanization, propelled instead by human intervention or air currents.

Little Red and Blue is a superlative example of a Calder mobile. Exceptionally elegant and sleek in design, the graceful geometric shapes are suspended from wires. Encompassing multiple complex elements rendered in Calder’s archetypal striking palette of bright colors, the red and blue forms greet each other with a constant embrace, continuously slipping and gliding past each other in a continuous dance. Unceasingly exploring the limits of the space around it, when viewed from below the installation takes on the form of a constellation or other stellar movement in the night sky. Calder noted that “since the beginning of my work in abstract art, and even though it was not obvious at the time, I felt that there was no better model for me to work from than the Universe... Spheres of different sizes, densities, colors and volumes, floating in space, surrounded by vivid clouds and tides, currents of air, viscosities and fragrances—in their utmost variety and disparity” (the artist quoted in Carmen Giménez and Alexander S. C. Rower Eds., Calder: Gravity and Grace, London, 2004, p. 52).

His most desirable body of work, Calder's mobiles are completely free of pattern, prediction and plan and instead allow for random movement and spontaneous variations. With every motion, a new perspective and relationship is created between each of the sculptural elements, continuously creating a new association. By relinquishing artistic and creative control of the mobile, Calder is unafraid to embrace the opportunity for chance within his work and encourages the possibility of improvisation and the creation of infinite variations of shape, form and design. Yet despite the spontaneity of each movement, every mobile by Calder's finely executed and composed. While completely unpredictable, the work maintains an effortless balance and serene harmony. Displaying the artist's unparalleled technical achievement and pioneering artistic genius, Little Red and Blue is a unique and perfect combination of color, form, weight, balance and motion and a superlative marriage of artistic excellence and technical precision.

One of the greatest and most renowned artists of the Twentieth Century, Alexander Calder’s works can be found in the collections of numerous international institutions including the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York; the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York; the Museum of Modern Art, New York; the Centre Georges Pompidou, Paris; the Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofia, Madrid; and the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. In recent years Calder has been the subject of several major museum shows including Tate Modern’s 2015 exhibition Alexander Calder: Performing Sculpture, the Whitney Museum’s 2017 retrospective Calder: Hypermobility, and Alexander Calder: Scaling Up at the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art in the same year.

Max A. Weitzenhoffer, Jr.

Max Weitzenhoffer could never have been a typical art collector. Born into a collecting family, Max watched his mother and father assemble an important collection of Impressionist and Modern Art. They traveled to pursue their passion, buying paintings and drawings as well as English furniture and blue and white porcelain to decorate their home in Oklahoma. Ultimately that renowned collection was generously donated to the Fred Jones Museum and is permanently on view in Norman where it is visited by members of the public as well as the professors and students at the University of Oklahoma.

Max learned from his mother, Clara, the important lesson that collecting art is a highly individual pursuit. He was always going to strike out on his own. As told in the fascinating biography To the Max: Max Weitzenhoffer’s Magical Trip from Oklahoma to New York and London—and Back by Tom Lindley, after starting a career in New York City as an apprentice to, and then later a trusted agent for, the prestigious art dealer David Findlay, Max ultimately went into partnership with the art dealing Gimpel family. He opened their New York branch as Gimpel & Weitzenhoffer Art Gallery on Madison Avenue. He introduced Modern European and British works to a new audience in New York and discovered numerous 20th Century artists for his own collection, including several wonderful talents of Mid-20th Century Britain. He was particularly close to Barbara Hepworth and remembers her personal (sometimes harrowing) stories of married life to Ben Nicholson and her relationship and friendly rivalry with Henry Moore. Alan Davie was another artist friend whom Max introduced to an American audience.

It was on a 1965 trip to London that Max fell in love with the vibrant Wassily Kandinsky Einige Spitzen (1925), which leads our Impressionist and Modern Art sale on the 17th November in New York. He underbid the work at a Christie’s auction, but regretted letting it sell to another bidder. Max pursued the work following the sale, buying the painting from Arthur Tooth, art dealer and close friend familiar to the entire Weitzenhoffer family. Max was also friends with John Berggruen, who sold him the present work, Little Red and Blue, soon after Berggruen left Perls Gallery, Calder’s dealer for many years in New York.

This was collecting in the American style: getting to know the right players, buying with great knowledge and research but also using strong instinct and faultless taste. In his life as a theatre owner and producer Max has also shown his great discernment. In addition to works of art, the walls of Max’s home are adorned with glossy playbills, Olivier and Tony awards, and other accolades that tell the story of his successful life in both the New York and London theatre circles.

Bonhams is honored to have the chance to share some of this collector’s brave and bold taste with a global audience.

Literature
Over the past six decades, Gerhard Richter has emerged as one of Germany’s most important Post-War painters and one of the most esteemed international artists alive. Richter’s astonishingly diverse practice, which has spanned photography to Pop Art to Abstract Expressionism, underscores his resolute commitment to painting. The present work, coming to auction for the first time from private hands, is an exceptional example from the artist’s iconic Abstraktes Bild series, created at the pinnacle of the artist’s celebrated abstract practice.

Born in Dresden in 1932 during the rise of the Third Reich, the wake of the war proved traumatic for Richter, with rigorous ideology and death haunting him since childhood. It was perhaps this upbringing that led to his strong dislike for ideology of any kind and underpinned his attraction to nature. Richter’s artistic education began in 1951 when he was accepted to the Dresden Art Academy. After his move in 1961 to Düsseldorf in West Germany, he co-founded a German variant of Pop Art which he termed Capitalist Realism.

During this period, the artist introduced his hallmark ‘blur’ in photograph-paintings, in which he would project a photograph onto a canvas, and obscure the image through various methods including squeegee, or light touches of paint or glue. He would choose from a wide range of sources, including personal photographs of family and friends, images of public figures taken from newspapers, journals, and books, or snapshots he took himself. The squeegee would become one of Richter’s most important tools, blurring the relationship between the artist’s mind, eye and hand. “It is a good technique for switching off thinking”, Richter explained. “Consciously, I can’t calculate the result. But subconsciously, I can sense it. This is a nice “between” state” (the artist quoted in Stefan Koldehoff, ‘Gerhard Richter, Die Macht der Malerei’, in Art: Das Kunstmagazin, December 1999, p. 20).

Beginning in the late 1960s, Richter redirected his attention to abstraction, and by the early 1980s, he embarked upon an unprecedented exploration into a new frontier of abstraction, channeling his formidable talent into a vibrant series of canvases that reached new heights of innovation. The Abstraktes Bild (Abstract Paintings), the series from which the present work belongs, are created not only via relatively common painterly techniques such as troweling, scraping, and brushing, but the artist also incorporates his signature squeegee technique, in which he applies and re-applies layers of paint, dragging them across the canvas to produce shimmering planes of color. Richter has remained highly experimental and innovative in his technical approach to artistic production, utilizing unconventional tools and methods beyond the squeegee, and introducing new experimental media such as glass and digital works up until the present day.

Writing in the year that the present work was created, Roald Nasgaard explained that Richter will begin a new group of paintings by placing a number of primed canvases around the walls of his studio, eventually working on several or all of them at the same time, like a chess player simultaneously playing several boards. He begins by applying a soft ground of red, yellow, blue or green...but then it must be altered, with a new move, a first form; a large brush stroke, a track of color drawn out with a squeegee, a geometric shape. Step by step the painting changes in appearance, sometimes sharply, with each new accretion, and goes through several states...they are finished “when there is no more I can do to them, when they exceed me, or they have something that I can no longer keep up with” (Roald Nasgaard, ‘The Abstract Paintings’ in Terry Neff Ed., Gerhard Richter: Paintings, London 1988, p. 108).

Painted during the peak years of the artist’s celebrated abstract practice of the late 1980s, Abstraktes Bild (Untitled) 679-3 (1988), embodies the artist’s constant obsession with, and interrogation of, order and chaos, its composition delicately poised between the two. Here the artist employs a relatively reduced color palette, dominated by rich, earthy yellows and greens that glow against the dark gray that dominates the vertical axis and upper edge of the canvas. The artist’s process is visible in the thick, horizontal swathes across the surface, revealing interspersed linear fissures and flashes of brilliant pops of cyan and white layered below. Sublime washes of yellow paint blur passages of red into orange, teal into green and black into charcoal. A fiery red erupts in the lower right of the canvas, adding a dramatic pop to the rigidity and buoyancy of the horizontal drags of paint, creating a truly captivating visual experience. Across this dazzling array of color, Richter pulls his squeegee, creating bright, staccato accretions that celebrate and reveal the work’s creative genesis.

The linear structure of the artist’s strokes visibly reflects the inherent repetition of the process, yet the extremely broad brush of Richter’s squeegee introduces elements of chance. There are various factors in and out of the artist’s control that effect the ultimate outcome of the painting-- the amount of paint on the surface, the level of pressure applied onto the squeegee and the arbitrary patterns that each new coat of paint creates as it envelops the layer beneath it. “I’m more concerned now to have [my paintings] evolve of their own accord’, Richter claimed. ‘I don’t work at random but in a more planned way, in the sense that I let a thing happen by chance, then correct it, and so on. The actual work consists in taking what appears, looking at it then deciding whether it’s acceptable or not” (the artist quoted in Dietmar Elger and Hans Ulrich Obrist Eds., Gerhard Richter – Text, Writings, Interviews and Letters 1961-2007, London 2009, p. 275).

Throughout his long career, perhaps most unusual is Richter’s ability to move regularly from one style and technique to another, and then back again, every so often revisiting Photorealism and stretching his repertoire by experimenting in sculpture and installation. For while most other artists begin with one style which gradually develops into another (many, such as Wassily Kandinsky and Jackson Pollock beginning in the relative safety of figurative art before entering the more liberating world of abstraction), Richter has continued to exist within many styles contemporaneously, with incredible success across them all.

In addition to his artistic production, Richter has also taught throughout most of his career, at the Art Academy of Dusseldorf, the University of Fine Arts of Hamburg, and the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design. In 1986, the year the present work was created, Richter was given his first North American retrospective organized by the Art Gallery of Ontario, Toronto and The Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago. His work has been the subject of touring retrospectives at the Kunsthalle Düsseldorf; the Tate Gallery, London; the Museum of Modern Art, New York, and the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, among many others.

A member of the New York School’s first generation of Abstract Expressionists alongside Jackson Pollock, Mark Rothko and Willem de Kooning, Pousette-Dart established his own meditative yet expressive aesthetic, a style he explored throughout his extensive career. The artist showed at the legendary Betty Parsons Gallery from 1948 until it closed in 1963 and was a great influence on the gallery’s younger generation, including Agnes Martin, Ellsworth Kelly and Jack Youngerman. The artist’s Symphony No. 1, The Transcendental (1942), in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, is understood to be the first mural-sized easel painting by the New York School, and was a major influence on Pollock’s Mural (1943), as well as Arshile Gorky’s The Liver is the Cock’s Comb (1944). Other examples by the artist can be found in the Museum of Modern Art, New York; the Art Institute of Chicago and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

A master of Abstract Expressionism who has broken numerous records at auction for women artists, Joan Mitchell created a singular visual vocabulary over her nearly four decade career. Born in Chicago in 1925, she came of age in New York amongst the Second Generation Abstract Expressionists including friends and fellow artists Helen Frankenthaler and Grace Hartigan. Mitchell moved to France in 1959 where she would complete many of her most famous works, choosing to live abroad for the opportunity to cultivate creative and personal freedom.

The present work hails from Mitchell’s mature period and exemplifies her confident and virtuoso approach to color and composition which defined her career. Executed in 1983, this work was a study for her iconic and most sought-after series of Grande Vallée paintings. Often regarded as the pinnacle of her career, this suite of twenty-one monumental canvases was named after a picturesque setting of lakes and hills in Brittany, France. This area was a place of fond childhood memories for Mitchell’s close friend and assistant Gisèle Barreau, and the series is therefore a deeply personal expression of emotion and memory. Coming to auction for the first time, this is a rare opportunity to acquire an expressive and gestural pastel by Joan Mitchell not seen by the public in nearly twenty years.

A comprehensive retrospective of Joan Mitchell’s work is currently being organized by the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art and The Baltimore Museum of Art. After opening at the host institutions from Spring 2021, it will travel to the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York, and the Foundation Louis Vuitton, Paris. This exhibition will not only include her famous large-scale canvases, but will also focus on her process for the first time in a curatorial setting and highlight the importance of her pastels, works on paper and small paintings to her wider practise.

Depicting two of the artist’s best-known motifs, an athletic hare and a weighty anvil, Barry Flanagan’s sculpture Large Boxing Hare on Anvil (1984) is a superlative example of the artist’s work. Born in Wales and educated at Saint Martin’s School of Art, Flanagan began to depict hares in the late 1970s. Thought to seek inspiration from George Ewart Evans’ book The Leaping Hare, as well as the memory of a hare bounding through the British countryside, the animal quickly became the defining feature of his œuvre.

Though whimsical, the work is laden with meaning. Choosing the hare for its fleet footedness, Flanagan then depicts it engaging in distinctly virtuosic human activities: often ballet, or in this case, boxing. The hare's positioning, in an almost two-dimensional profile, is also reminiscent of Egyptian imagery. This is underscored by the Egyptian’s practice of worshipping hares for their distinct swiftness and energy – just like that of a boxer. There is a keen juxtaposition however: this pouncing hare is atop an anvil, an object almost defined by its heft. It instills the work with irony, drawing attention to the weightiness of its media against the featherweight hare.

The present work is one of the earliest examples of an anvil in the artist’s practice, an image that would continue to appear until his death in 2009. It also stems from the period when Flanagan’s work was just beginning its rise into the public consciousness. The sculptor represented the UK at the 1982 Venice Biennale, and it was in that year that his works began to rapidly join public collections globally. You can now find his works in the collections of the Museum of Modern Art, New York; the Centre Georges Pompidou, Paris and the Tate, London. Another work from this edition is in the collection of the Baltimore Museum of Art.

The present work was acquired over 25 years ago by prominent American collector and philanthropist Gerard L. Cafesjian, and remained in his Estate's collection until now. Born in 1925 in Brooklyn to Armenian immigrant parents, Mr. Cafesjian became a highly successful editor at West Publishing - a firm specialising in legal materials - and spearheaded the launch of the annual Art and the Law exhibition, for which he received the prestigious Business in the Arts Award. Mr. Cafesjian’s passion for collecting began with a childhood fascination with geology and gemstones, which later branched into fine art. Over the years, he patroned and developed personal relationships with world-renowned sculptors and ultimately assembled an impressive collection of both lapidary and fine works of art.

Upon his retirement, Mr. Cafesjian committed his time to art and charity, as he founded the Cafesjian Family Foundation to support mostly Armenian causes. He founded the Scottsdale Museum of Contemporary Art in Arizona in 1999, and, in the early 2000s, he set his sights on an enormous, unfinished and crumbling Soviet structure in Armenia’s capital city as the site for a private museum. The building’s ambitious renovation and expansion resulted in the creation of the Cafesjian Center for the Arts, which, upon its inauguration in 2009, was touted by the New York Times as being a modern-day ‘Hanging Gardens of Armenia’ and is best known for its world-class sculpture garden.

“Art many times is just a beautiful excuse to transform the way that you look at the reality around you, and it’s also the idea of communication, building bridges, putting people in touch with one another.”

– Jaume Plensa

Barcelona-born artist Jaume Plensa is globally renowned for his now iconic seated figures that can be seen in striking monumental sculptures and mesmerizing public installations on several continents. The present sculpture by the artist, Sitting Tattoo IV (2006), elegantly encapsulate the artist’s use of the figure, space and text to explore the deep connections of the human experience with language and spirituality - the major recurring themes of his practice.

The figure sits peacefully stable and compactly folded in on themselves. Layered with this solidity, Plensa is masterful in his ability to combine concrete physicality with light and space to transform both the form itself and its environment. Lit from within by a series of changing colors, the figure and everything around it is illuminated in glowing hues. The form is almost divine in appearance - both permanent and ephemeral, strong and fragile, complex and simple - inviting a dialogue between body and soul. Through this spectacular sculpture the artist imparts the wonder of the dynamic beauty of humanity in harmony.

Jaume Plensa’s works are exhibited internationally, and his many public sculptures are on view the world over, including the beloved Crown Fountain (2004), in Chicago’s Millennium Park. Sculptures from the Tattoo series and related resin works have been exhibited at the Massachusetts University, Amherst, in 2004; Stiftung Wilhelm Lehmbrock Museum, Duisburg, Germany in 2005; Germany’s Kunsthalle Mannheim in 2006; MAMAC–Musée d’Art Moderne et d’Art Contemporain in Nice 2007 – 2008; Yorkshire Sculpture Park, Wakefield in 2011; Art Public–Art Basel, Miami in 2012; and at Espoo Museum of Modern Art, Helsinki in 2012. Additionally, a seven-part public commission from this body of work entitled Conversation À Nice (2007), is installed in Place Masséna, Nice, France. Plensa has received numerous awards, including the Medaille de Chevalier des Arts et des Lettres, awarded by the French Ministry of Culture in 1993, and the Government of Catalonia’s National Prize for Fine Art in 1997. In 2005, he was invested Doctor Honoris Causa by the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. In Spain, he received the National Prize for Fine Art in 2012, the prestigious Velázquez Prize for the Arts in 2013 and he was awarded Honorary Doctorate of the Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona in 2018.

The present work was acquired by prominent American collector and philanthropist Gerard L. Cafesjian, and remained in his Estate’s collection until now. Born in 1925 in Brooklyn to Armenian immigrant parents, Mr. Cafesjian became a highly successful editor at West Publishing - a firm specialising in legal materials - and spearheaded the launch of the annual Art and the Law exhibition, for which he received the prestigious Business in the Arts Award. Takashi Murakami is one of the most influential and best-known contemporary artists of our time. His piercingly clever combination of fine art, pop culture, design, religious references, Japanese art history and cartoons, have penetrated global culture at almost every level and in almost every location. His bold and colorful paintings, sculptures, prints and design collaborations, most famously with Louis Vuitton, are infused with Japanese culture and voraciously collected by a devoted international audience. Murakami occupies the rare air of a fine artist that is also embraced by a wide audience, inviting comparisons with Andy Warhol, Jeff Koons and Damien Hirst. Coming to auction for the first time, \textit{Tongari-kun (Mr. Pointy) Costume} (2003) is a rare and spectacular example of Murakami's playful and subversive practise.

Murakami developed the \textit{Superflat} theory of art, exploring the “flatness” of Japanese visual culture teamed with the shallowness of the country’s consumerism. From the \textit{Superflat} vantage point, the artist has explored the vast history of Japanese culture from classical art forms (Murakami holds a BA, MFA and Ph.D. from Tokyo National University of Fine Arts and Music, where he studied \textit{Nihonga}, a style of traditional Japanese painting) to subcultures that have emerged since World War II. One notable subculture is \textit{kawaii} which translates in Japanese to “cute.” \textit{Kawaii} has been associated with a fashion of women’s dress in Japan and generally refers to anything that is childlike, charming and/or vulnerable. “Cuteness” is a way to be non-confrontational and signal social conformity – but even this harmless banality is not without an undercurrent of violence and sexuality. Murakami is a master of harnessing dualities, as can be seen in the present work. Superficially the work is a charming costume, but it holds a deceptive, slippery complexity that is a hallmark of the artist’s most acclaimed works.

Drawing inspiration from sources as diverse as Buddhism and \textit{Manga}, Murakami has developed recurring characters in the dramas of his work since the 1990s. One of the most prominent is Mr. Pointy (“\textit{Tongari-kun}” in Japanese), who is depicted in the present lot. Monumental sculptures of this character have been exhibited at New York’s Rockefeller Plaza in 2003, the Palace of Versailles in 2010, and have been included in the artist’s seminal 2007 retrospective at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Los Angeles, Brooklyn Museum, New York, Museum für Moderne Kunst, Frankfurt, and Guggenheim, Bilbao. Murakami uses costumes frequently in his practice to inhabit different identities and further bring to life the universe he has created in paintings and sculptures, with many costumes worn during the openings of major shows. So important are they to his practise, eight of the artist’s costumes were exhibited in 2019 as part of a major survey exhibition, \textit{Murakami vs Murakami} at Tai Kwun Contemporary in Hong Kong.

Combining the figure of the Buddha with children’s cartoons, Mr. Pointy has numerous arms, a multi-colored pointed promontory on top of his head and rainbow colored markings on his body and legs. Similar to many of Murakami’s best works, Mr. Pointy’s overwhelming cuteness is seductive and inviting, but the fantasy he inhabits boarders on the hallucinogenic. On closer inspection, the frown and mismatched wandering eyes are more crazed or creepy than cute, and the viewer is left wondering as to whether the figure is a playful and cuddly friend, a subversive criticism of infantilizing consumerism, a blasphemous critique of religion, a stand-in for the artist himself - or all of the above. Rather than representing one single theory, Mr. Pointy becomes an all-encompassing manifestation of dueling forces in contemporary culture with Murakami’s skillfully aware and relevant combination of references that, in concert, are more than the sum of their parts.

Takashi Murakami’s work has been widely and continuously exhibited world-wide since the 1990s. His works are included in major museum collections globally. He lives and works in his native Japan.

\begin{quote}
\textit{“We want to see the newest things. That is because we want to see the future, even if only momentarily. It is the moment in which, even if we don’t completely understand what we have glimpsed, we are nonetheless touched by it. This is what we have come to call art.”}

– Takashi Murakami

"The butterfly has become to Mark Grotjahn what the target is to Kenneth Noland, the zip was to Barnett Newman, and the color white is to Robert Ryman."

Melding the abstract and the organic, the butterfly wings in the present work simultaneously emanate and recede in warp speed. Grounded in the foundation of 1960s Op Art and mining sources as historic as Alberti's treatise on one-point perspective, Grotjahn has ushered the style into the 21st century, the Concretism of Bridget Riley or Victor Vasarely giving way to the deliberate and painstaking handmade artistry that is quintessentially of the artist, and the era. Given the visual and art historical boundaries that Grotjahn's Butterfly series explores, other examples from this sought-after series can be found in major collections and institutions including New York's Museum of Modern Art, and the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum.

Dexter Dalwood, a contemporary English painter currently living and working in London, was shortlisted for the Turner Prize in 2010 and is represented by top galleries globally. The present painting proposes a possibility of the current whereabouts of the infamous Lord Lucan, who vanished after the body of the family's nanny was found in their home. Dalwood positions the protagonist in the landscape of the American West, with few quirky creature comforts, surrounded by the harsh beauty of the desert with the city lights twinkling with either threat or possibility in the distance. Not only does this work bring together the current global nature of Contemporary Art, tabloid culture and the enduring fantasy of the freedoms of the Wild West, but is a spectacular example of Dalwood's signature style. He is a master of creating luscious, visually enticing paintings that inspect how historical events are interpreted and passed on by culture. In Lord Lucan (2010), like all of the artist's paintings, the subject is physically absent and represented through his environment. This is particularly apt for this subject and masterfully adds to the mystery, conspiracy and excitement of this stunning work.

Conditions of sale

The following Conditions of Sale, as amended by any published or posted notices or verbal announcements during the sale, constitute the entire terms and conditions on which property listed in the catalog shall be offered for sale or sold by Bonhams & Butterfields Auctioneers Corp. and any consignor of such property for whom Bonhams acts as agent. By participating in this sale, you agree to be bound by these terms and conditions.

1. If live online bidding is available for the subject auction, additional terms and conditions of sale relating to online bidding will apply; see www.bonhams.com/OnlineTerms for the supplemental terms. As used herein, “Bonhams,” “we” and “us” refer to Bonhams & Butterfields Auctioneers Corp.

2. As used herein, the term “bid price” means the price at which a lot is successfully knocked down to the buyer. The term “purchase price” means the aggregate of (a) the bid price, (b) a PREMIUM retained by us and payable by the buyer (the “buyer’s premium”), EQUAL TO 27.5% OF THE FIRST $12,500 OF THE BID PRICE, PLUS 25% OF THE AMOUNT OF THE BID PRICE BETWEEN $12,500 AND INCLUDING $60,000, PLUS 20% OF THE AMOUNT OF THE BID PRICE ABOVE $60,000 UP TO AND INCLUDING $600,000, PLUS 14.5% OF THE AMOUNT OF THE BID PRICE ABOVE $600,000, and (c) unless the buyer is exempt by law from the payment thereof, all applicable sales taxes. With regard to New York sales tax, please refer to the “Sales and Use Tax” section of these Conditions of Sale.

3. Every bidder shall be responsible for any use of any assigned paddle or bidding account, regardless of the circumstances.

4. You represent and warrant that: (i) you have provided us with true and correct copies of valid identification and proof of residence and, if applicable, financial and/or corporate documents; (ii) neither you, your principal (if applicable, and subject to Bonhams’ prior written acceptance pursuant to paragraph 2 above), nor any individual or entity with a beneficial or ownership interest in either or in the purchase transaction on the Specially Designated Nationals List maintained by the Office of Foreign Assets Control of the U.S. Department of the Treasury nor subject to any other sanctions or embargo program or regulation in effect in the United States, European Union, England and Wales, or other relevant jurisdiction; (iii) if you are acting as an agent for a principal, you have conducted appropriate due diligence into such principal, and agree that Bonhams shall be entitled to rely upon such due diligence, you will retain adequate records evidencing such due diligence for a period of five (5) years following the consummation of the sale, and will make these records available for inspection upon Bonhams’ request; (iv) neither the purchase transaction (including your bidding activity) nor the purchase funds are connected with nor derive from any criminal activity, and they are not designed to nor have they or shall they, violate the banking, anti-money laundering, or currency transfer laws or other regulations (including without limitation, import-export laws) of any country or jurisdiction, or further any other unlawful purpose, including without limitation collusion, anti-competitive activity, tax evasion or tax fraud.

5. You acknowledge and agree that we may rely upon the accuracy and completeness of the foregoing warranties.

6. Upon the fall of the auctioneer’s hammer, the highest bidder shall be declared the buyer of the lot in accordance and subject to compliance with all of the conditions set forth herein and (a) assumes full risk and responsibility therefor, (b) if requested will sign a confirmation of purchase, and (c) will pay the purchase price in full for such lot as we may require for all lots purchased. No lot may be transferred.

7. UNLESS OTHERWISE AGREED, payment in good, cleared funds is due and payable within five (5) business days following the auction sale. Whenever the buyer pays only a part of the total purchase price for one or more lots purchased, we may apply such payments, in our sole discretion, to the lot or lots we choose. Payment will not be deemed made in full until we have received good, cleared funds for all amounts due. Title in any purchased property will not pass until full and final payment has been received by Bonhams. Accounts must be settled in full before property is released to the buyer. In the event of a dispute over payment, such dispute will not affect the passing of title or the buyer’s obligation to timely remit full payment.

8. We reserve the right to refuse to accept payment from a source other than the registered bidder or buyer of record. Once an invoice is issued, we cannot change the buyer’s name on the invoice.

Payment for purchases must be made in the currency in which the sale is conducted. Bonhams’ preferred payment method is by wire transfer. For final purchases exceeding US $25,000.00, all payments must be in the form of wire transfer unless other arrangements have been approved in advance. For final purchases below US $25,000.00, payment may also be made in or by the following means:

(i) Cash. Please note that the amount of cash that can be accepted from a given purchaser is limited to US $5,000 per auction sale (whether by single or multiple related payments). If the amount payable exceeds that sum, the balance must be paid by another method.

(ii) Check, money order, personal check with approved credit drawn on a U.S. bank. A processing fee will be assessed on any returned checks.

(iii) Visa, MasterCard, American Express or Discover debit or credit card issued in the name of the purchaser or record. Only one debit or credit card may be used for payment of an account balance. This method of payment may not be available to first time purchasers.

9. To the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, the buyer grants us a security interest in the property, and we may retain as collateral security for the buyer’s obligations to us, any property and all monies held or received by us for the account of the buyer, in our possession. We also retain all rights of a secured party under the Uniform Commercial Code (which shall mean the New York Uniform Commercial Code, except where the Uniform Commercial Code of another state governs the perfection of a security interest in collateral located in that state), and you agree that we may file financing statements without your signature. If the foregoing conditions or any other applicable conditions herein are not complied with, in addition to all other remedies available to us and the consignor by law, we may at our election: (a) hold the buyer liable for the full purchase price and any late charges, collection costs, attorneys’ fees and costs, expenses and incidental damages incurred by us or the consignor arising out of the buyer’s breach; (b) cancel the sale and re-offer the property at a re-sale price no less than that paid by the buyer; and/or (c) cancel the sale and/or resell the purchased property, at public auction and/or by private sale, and in such event the buyer shall be liable for the payment of all consequential damages, including any deficiencies or monetary losses, and all costs and expenses of such sale or sales, commissions at our standard rates, all cost of insurance and any late charges due hereunder, all late charges, collection costs, attorneys’ fees and costs, expenses and incidental damages. In addition, where two or more amounts are owed in respect of different transactions by the buyer to us, Bonhams 1793 Limited and/or to any of our other affiliates, subsidiaries or parent companies worldwide within the Bonhams Group, we reserve the right to apply any monies paid in respect of a transaction to discharge any amount owed by the buyer. If all fees, commissions, premiums, bid prices and other sums due to us from the buyer are not paid promptly as provided in these Conditions of Sale, we reserve the right to impose a finance charge equal to 1.5% per month (or, if lower, the maximum nonusurious rate of interest permitted by applicable law), on all amounts due to us beginning on the 31st day following the sale until payment is received, in addition to other remedies available to us by law.

5. We reserve the right to withhold any property and to divide and combine lots at any time before such property’s auction. Unless otherwise announced by the auctioneer at the time of sale, all bids are per lot as numbered in the catalog and no lots shall be divided or combined for sale.

6. We reserve the right to reject a bid from any bidder, to split any bidding increment, and to advance the bidding in any manner the auctioneer may decide. In the event of any dispute between bidders, or in the event the auctioneer doubts the validity of any bid, the auctioneer shall have sole and final discretion either to determine the successful bidder, re-open the bidding, or to cancel the sale and re-offer and resell the article in dispute. If any dispute arises after the sale, our sales records shall be conclusive in all respects.

We further reserve the right to cancel the sale of any property if (i) you are in breach of your representations and warranties as set forth in paragraph 3 above, (ii) we, in our sole discretion, determine that such transaction might be unlawful or might subject Bonhams or the consignor to any liability to any third party; or (iii) there are any other grounds for cancellation under these Conditions of Sale.

7. If we are prevented by fire, theft or any other reason whatsoever from delivering any property to the buyer or a sale otherwise cannot be completed, our liability shall be limited to the sum actually paid therefor by the buyer and shall in no event include any compensatory, incidental or consequential damages.

8. All lots in the catalog are offered subject to a reserve unless otherwise indicated in the catalog. The reserve is the confidential minimum bid price at which such lot will be sold and it does not exceed the low estimate value for the lot. If a lot is offered subject to a reserve, we may implement such reserve by bidding on behalf of the consignor, whether by opening bidding or continuing bidding in response to other bidders until reaching the reserve. If we have an interest in an offered lot and the proceeds therefrom other than our commissions, we may bid up to the reserve to protect such interest. If the auctioneer determines that any opening or subsequent bid is below the reserve for a lot, (s)he may reject such opening bid and withdraw the item from sale. CONSIGNORS ARE NOT ALLOWED TO BID ON THEIR OWN ITEMS.

9. Other than as provided in the Limited Right of Rescission with respect to identification of authorship, all property is sold "AS IS" and any statements contained in the catalog or in any advertisement, bill of sale, announcement, condition report, invoice or elsewhere as to period, culture, source, origin, media, measurements, size, quality, rarity, provenance, importance, exhibition and literature of historical relevance, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or physical condition ARE QUALIFIED STATEMENTS OF OPINION AND NOT WARRANTIES, REPRESENTATIONS, OR ASSUMPTION OF LIABILITY. Neither Bonhams nor the consignor shall be responsible for any error or omission in the catalog description of any property. No employee or agent of Bonhams is authorized to make on our behalf or on that of the consignor any representation or warranty, oral or written, with respect to any property.

10. All purchased property shall be removed from the premises at which the sale is conducted by the date(s) and time(s) set forth in the "Buyer's Guide" portion of this catalog. If not so removed, daily storage fees will be payable to us by the buyer as set forth therein. We reserve the right to transfer property not so removed to an offsite warehouse at the buyer's risk and expense, as set forth in more detail in the "Buyer's Guide." Packing and handling of purchased lots are the responsibility of the buyer and at the buyer's entire risk, as are any identification, application for, and costs of obtaining of any necessary export, import, restricted material (e.g. endangered species) or other permit for such lots. For an additional fee, Bonhams may provide packing and shipping services for certain items as noted in the "Buyer's Guide" section of the catalog.

11. The copyright in the text of the catalog and the photographs, digital images and illustrations of lots in the catalog belong to Bonhams or our licensors. You will not reproduce or permit anyone else to reproduce such text, photographs, digital images or illustrations without our prior written consent. Bonhams and the consignor make no representation or warranty as to whether the buyer acquires any copyrights on the purchase of an item of Property.

12. Bonhams may, in its discretion, as a courtesy and free of charge, execute bids on your behalf if so instructed by you, provided that neither Bonhams nor our employees or agents will be liable for any error or default (whether human or otherwise) in doing so or for failing to do so. Without limiting the foregoing, Bonhams (including our agents and employees) shall not be responsible for any problem relating to telephone, online, or other bids submitted remotely through any means, including without limitation, any telecommunications or internet fault or failure, or breakdown or problems with any devices or online platforms, including third-party online platforms, regardless of whether such issue arises with our, your, or such third-party's technology, equipment, or connection. By participating at auction by telephone or online, bidders expressly consent to the recording of their bidding sessions and related communications with Bonhams and our employees and agents, and acknowledge their acceptance of these Conditions of Sale as well as any additional terms and conditions applicable to any such bidding platform or technology.

13. These Conditions of Sale shall bind the successors and assigns of all bidders and buyers and inure to the benefit of our successors and assigns. No waiver, amendment or modification of the terms hereof (other than posted notices or oral announcements during the sale) shall bind us unless specifically stated in writing and signed by us. No act or omission of Bonhams, its employees or agents, nor any failure thereof to exercise any remedy hereunder, shall operate or be deemed to operate as a waiver of Bonhams' rights under these Conditions of Sale. If any part of these Conditions of Sale is for any reason invalid or unenforceable, the rest shall remain valid and enforcable.

14. These Conditions of Sale and the buyer's and our respective rights and obligations hereunder shall be governed by and construed and enforced in accordance with the laws of the State of New York. Any dispute, controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this agreement, or the breach, termination or validity thereof, brought by or against Bonhams (but not including claims brought against the consignor by the buyer of lots consigned hereunder) shall be resolved by the procedures set forth below.

15. You accept and agree that Bonhams will hold and process your personal information and may share and use it as required by law and as described in, and in line with Bonhams' Privacy Policy, available at website at www.bonhams.com/privacy. If you desire access, update, or restriction to the use of your personal information, please email data.protection@bonhams.com.

SALES AND USE TAX

New York sales tax is charged on the hammer price, buyer's premium and any other applicable charges on any property collected or delivered in New York State, regardless of the state or country in which the buyer resides or does business. Buyers who make direct arrangements for collection by a shipper who is considered a "private" or "contract" carrier by the New York Department of Taxation and Finance will be charged New York sales tax, regardless of the destination of the property. Property collected for delivery to a destination outside of New York by a shipper who is considered a "common carrier" by the New York Department of Taxation and Finance (e.g., United States Postal Service, United Parcel Service, and FedEx) is not subject to New York sales tax, but if it is delivered into any state in which Bonhams is registered or otherwise conducts business sufficient to establish a nexus, Bonhams may be required by law to collect and remit the appropriate sales tax in effect in such state. Property collected for delivery outside the United States by a freight-forwarder who is registered with the Transportation Security Administration ("TSA") is not subject to New York sales tax.

MEDIATION AND ARBITRATION PROCEDURES

(a) Within 30 days of written notice that there is a dispute, the parties or their authorized and empowered representatives shall meet by telephone and/or in person to mediate their differences. If the parties agree, a mutually acceptable mediator shall be selected and the parties will equally share the fees and expenses of mediation. The mediator shall be a retired judge or an attorney familiar with commercial law and trained in or qualified by experience in handling mediations. Any communications made during the mediation process shall not be admitted in any subsequent mediation, arbitration or judicial proceeding. All proceedings and any resolutions thereof shall be confidential, and the terms governing arbitration set forth in paragraph (c) below shall govern.

(b) If mediation does not resolve all disputes between the parties, or in any event no later than 60 days after receipt of the written notice of dispute referred to above, the parties shall submit the dispute for binding arbitration before a single neutral arbitrator who shall be a retired judge or an attorney familiar with commercial law and trained in or qualified by experience in handling arbitrations. Such arbitrator shall make all appropriate disclosures required by law. The arbitrator shall be drawn from a panel of a national or international arbitration service agreed to by the parties, and shall be selected as follows: (i) if the arbitration service has specific rules or procedures, those rules or procedures shall be followed; (ii) if the arbitration service does not have rules or procedures for the selection of an arbitrator, the arbitrator shall be an individual jointly agreed to by the parties. If the parties cannot agree on an arbitration service, the arbitration shall be conducted by Judicial Arbitration and Mediation Services, Inc. (“JAMS”) or another national or international alternative dispute resolution (“ADR”) provider of Bonhams’ choice, and the arbitrator shall be selected in accordance with JAMS’ Streamlined Arbitration Rules and Procedures or the rules of the other ADR provider selected by Bonhams. The arbitrator’s award shall be in writing and shall set forth findings of fact and legal conclusions.

(c) Unless otherwise agreed to by the parties or provided by the published rules of the arbitration service:

(i) The arbitration shall occur within 60 days following the selection of the arbitrator.

(ii) The arbitration shall be conducted in New York, New York; and

(iii) Discovery and the procedure for the arbitration shall be as follows:

A. All arbitration proceedings shall be confidential; B. The parties shall submit written briefs to the arbitrator no later than 15 days before the arbitration commences; C. LIMITED RIGHT OF RESCission

If within one (1) year from the date of sale, the original buyer (a) gives written notice to us alleging that the identification of Authorship (as defined below) of such lot as set forth in the UPPERCASE TYPE heading of the catalog description of such lot (as amended by any saleroom notices or verbal announcements during the sale) is not substantially correct based on a fair reading of the catalog (including the terms of any glossary contained therein), and (b) within 30 days after such notice returns the lot to us in the same condition as at the time of sale, and (c) establishes the allegation in the notice to our satisfaction (including by providing one or more written opinions by recognized experts in the field, as we may reasonably require), then the sale of such lot will be rescinded and, unless we have already paid to the consignor monies owed him in connection with the sale, the original purchase price will be refunded.

If, prior to receiving such notice from the original buyer alleging such defect, we have paid the consignor monies owed him in connection with the sale, we shall pay the original buyer the amount of our commissions, any other sale proceeds to which we are entitled and applicable taxes received from the buyer on the sale and make demand on the consignor to pay the balance of the original purchase price to the original buyer. Should the consignor fail to pay such amount promptly, we may disclose the identity of the consignor and assign to the original buyer our rights against the consignor with respect to the lot the sale of which is sought to be rescinded. Upon such disclosure and assignment, any liability of Bonhams as consignor’s agent with respect to said lot shall automatically terminate.

The foregoing limited right of rescission is available to the original buyer only and may not be assigned to or relied upon by any subsequent transferee of the property sold. The buyer hereby accepts the benefit of the consignor’s warranty of title and other representations and warranties made by the consignor for the buyer’s benefit. Nothing in this section shall be construed as an admission by us of responsibility with respect to any lot. THE BUYER’S SOLE AND EXCLUSIVE REMEDY AGAINST BONHAMS FOR ANY REASON WHATSOEVER IS THE LIMITED RIGHT OF RESCISSION DESCRIBED IN THIS SECTION.

“Authorship” means only the identity of the creator, the period, culture and source or origin of the lot, as the case may be, as set forth in the UPPERCASE TYPE heading of the print catalog entry. The right of rescission does not extend to: (a) works of art executed before 1870 (unless these works are determined to be counterfeits created since 1870); as this is a matter of current scholarly opinion which can change; (b) titles, descriptions, or other identification of offered lots, which information normally appears in lower case type below the UPPERCASE TYPE heading identifying the Authorship; (c) Authorship of any lot where it was specifically mentioned that there exists a conflict of specialist or scholar opinion regarding the Authorship of the lot at the time of sale; (d) Authorship of any lot which as of the date of sale was in accordance with the then generally-accepted opinion of scholars and specialists regarding the same; or (e) the identification of periods or dates of creation in catalog descriptions which may be proven inaccurate by means of scientific processes that are not generally accepted for use until after publication of the catalog in which the property is offered or that were unreasonably expensive or impractical to use at the time of such publication.

LIMITATION OF LIABILITY

EXCEPT AS EXPRESSLY PROVIDED ABOVE, ALL PROPERTY IS SOLD “AS IS.” NEITHER BONHAMS NOR THE CONSIGNOR MAKES ANY REPRESENTATION OR WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, AS TO THE MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS OR CONDITION OF THE PROPERTY OR AS TO THE CORRECTNESS OF DESCRIPTION, GENUINENESS, ATTRIBUTION, PROVENANCE OR PERIOD OF THE PROPERTY OR AS TO WHETHER THE BUYER ACQUIRES ANY COPYRIGHTS OR OTHER INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS IN LOTS SOLD OR AS TO WHETHER A WORK OF ART IS SUBJECT TO THE ARTIST’S MORAL RIGHTS OR OTHER RESIDUAL RIGHTS OF THE ARTIST. THE BUYER EXPRESSLY ACKNOWLEDGES AND AGREES THAT IN NO EVENT SHALL BONHAMS BE LIABLE FOR ANY DAMAGES INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, ANY COMPENSATORY, INCIDENTAL OR CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES. IN NO EVENT SHALL THE AGGREGATE LIABILITY OF BONHAMS AND ITS CONSIGNOR TO ANY PURCHASER EXCEED THE PURCHASE PRICE ACTUALLY PAID FOR A DISPUTED ITEM OF PROPERTY.
BUYING AND BIDDING AT AUCTION

Whether you are an experienced bidder or an enthusiastic novice, auctions provide a stimulating atmosphere unlike any other. Bonhams previews and sales are free and open to the public. As you will find in these directions, bidding and buying at auction is easy and exciting. Should you have any further questions, please visit our website at www.bonhams.com or call our Client Services Department at +1 (212) 644 9001.

Catalogs
Before each auction we publish illustrated catalogs. Our catalogs provide descriptions and estimated values for each "lot." A lot may refer to a single item or to a group of items auctioned together. The catalogs also include the dates and the times for the previews and auctions. We offer our catalogs by subscription or by single copy. For information on subscribing to our catalogs, you may refer to the subscription form in this catalog, call our Client Services Department, or visit our website at www.bonhams.com/us.

Previews
Auction previews are your chance to inspect each lot prior to the auction. We encourage you to look closely and examine each object on which you may want to bid so that you will know as much as possible about it. Except as expressly set forth in the Conditions of Sale, items are sold "as is" and with all faults; illustrations in our catalogs, website and other materials are provided for identification only. At the previews, our staff is always available to answer your questions and guide you through the auction process. Condition reports may be available upon request.

Estimates
Bonhams catalogs include high and low value estimates for each lot, exclusive of the buyer's premium and tax. The estimates are provided as an approximate guide to current market value based primarily on previous auction results for comparable pieces, and should not be interpreted as a representation or prediction of actual selling prices. They are determined well in advance of a sale and are subject to revision. Please contact us should you have any questions about value estimates.

Reserve
All lots in a catalog are subject to a reserve unless otherwise indicated. The reserve is the minimum price that the seller is willing to accept for a lot. This amount is confidential and does not exceed the low estimated value.

Auction House's Interest in Property Offered at Auction
On occasion, Bonhams may offer property in which it has an ownership interest in whole or in part or otherwise has an economic interest. Such property, if any, is identified in the catalog with a symbol next to the lot number(s). Bonhams may also offer property for a consignor that has been guaranteed a minimum price for its property by Bonhams or jointly by Bonhams and a third party. Bonhams and any third parties providing a guarantee may benefit financially if the guaranteed price is sold successfully and may incur a financial loss if its sale is not successful. Such property, if any, is identified in the catalog with a symbol next to the lot number(s).

Bidding at Auction
At Bonhams, you can bid in many ways: in person, via absentee bid, online, or by telephone, absentee bid, telephone, online or other means, or by agent, by absentee bid, by telephone, or by other means, or by agent, by absentee bid, by telephone, or other means, the buyer or bidder agrees to be bound by the Conditions of Sale. Lots are auctioned in consecutive numerical order as they appear in the catalog. Bidding normally begins below the low estimate. The auctioneer will accept bids from interested parties present in the saleroom, from telephone bidders, and from absentee bidders who have written bids in advance of the sale. The auctioneer may also execute bids on behalf of the consignor up to the amount of the reserve, but never above it. We assume no responsibility for failure to execute bids for any reason whatsoever.

In Person
If you are planning to bid at auction for the first time, you will need to register at the registration desk in order to receive a numbered bid card. To place a bid, hold up your card so that the auctioneer can clearly see it. Decide on the maximum auction price that you wish to pay, exclusive of buyer's premium and tax, and continue bidding until your bid prevails or you reach your limit. If you are the successful bidder on a lot, the auctioneer will acknowledge your paddle number and bid amount.

Absentee Bids
As a service to those wishing to place bids, we may at our discretion accept bids without charge in advance of auction online or in writing on bidding forms available from us. "Buy" bids will not be accepted; all bids must state the highest bid price the bidder is willing to pay. Our auctioneers will try to bid just as you would, with the goal of obtaining the item at the lowest bid price possible. In the event identical bids are submitted, the earliest bid submitted will take precedence.

Absentee bids shall be executed in competition with other absentee bids, any applicable reserve, and bids from other auction participants. A friend or agent may place bids on your behalf, provided that we have received your written authorization prior to the sale. Absentee bid forms are available in our catalogs, online at www.bonhams.com/us, at offices auction locations and at our Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York galleries.

By Telephone
We can arrange for you to bid by telephone. To arrange for a telephone bid, please contact our Client Services Department a minimum of 24 hours prior to the sale.
